Box Tree Moth attacking boxwood with caterpillars eating the underside of leaves. Their eating activity begins in April with 2-3 generations per summer. They are the only caterpillars to eat boxwood. Eggs take 3 days to develop; pupae are found in webbed boxwood leaves for 14 days. The moth of white framed in brown wings is similar in appearance to the melonworm moth, but will be found on boxwood plants.

The trees that make up our communities also inspire us to work together to change our cities and towns for the better. Trees keep us connected throughout the year as we learn and grow together. We inspire new tree planters and will plant more trees than ever before.
